ANTHONY AMOS

Bristol born on 5 October 1950, Anthony began his working life with horses followed by a career at sea working on trawlers, tugs and deep sea cargo ships in the Merchant Navy. He attended Manchester Art College, Heart of England College Bristol where he gained a distinction and Cardiff Art College. By 1980, determined to take his painting seriously and influenced by J M W Turner, he developed his own special method without any brushes but with thumb, finger and rag in hand mixing materials such as oil paint and bitumen to create the drama of weathered subjects that were his inspiration. Using his thumb nail to draw intricate boat riggings, detailed rugged faces, horses pulling lifeboats he captured the true heart and soul of the sea and those who worked there. His love for outdoor life enabled him to portray numerous timeless subjects such as dockyards, rusting boats and people involved with their daily working lives often with a coastal flavour. This exceptionally talented man tragically died of cancer aged just 59 in 2010. His legacy will inspire and be treasured for many years to come especially as he was starting to achieve widespread recognition. He was an outstanding marine artist.
